TOOLS REQUIRED

1/2", 7/16" Combination wrenches, Anti-seize

PROCEDURE AVERAGE TIME: 15 MINUTES

STEP 1 Remove the stock shift linkage from the motorcycle.

STEP 2 Apply anti-seize to the threads on each end of the shift rod. Install the colored lock nuts of your choice. Thread the universal joints on to each end of the linkage rod and adjust it to the length of the stock rod. or as close as possible.

STEP 3 The rear ball joint will thread directly into the transmission mounted shift lever. The front attachment to the splined shift lever will use the chrome nylock nut – this nut will face outward away from the engine. Back the lock nuts against the ball joints locking them into position.

STEP 4 In the rare case that the shift lever is too long or too short, extra adjustment may be gained by changing the position of the gear shift lever on the splined shaft it clamps to.

Ride on!
